The plan should include recommendations for budget accommodations, local attractions, dining, and public transportation. The itinerary should be well-structured, with each day clearly outlined from morning to evening. Also, consider the weather forecast for that period in your planning. Public transportation in Zanzibar is primarily provided by minibuses known as "dala dalas". These are privately owned and are a popular and affordable way to get around the island. However, they don't run on a set schedule and can be quite crowded. Here are some resources for more information:
